The Rutgers School of Social Work is pleased to announce a series of free, interprofessional health education events for the fall of 2015. Each event facilitates interactions among students and faculty from the following disciplines: Social Work, Medicine, Law, Pharmacy, Nursing, and the School of Health Related Professions (e.g., Physician Assistant, Occupational Therapy, Physical Therapy, Nutrition).

All MSW students from any campus are invited. No experience is necessary. Simply come to learn!

Interprofessional Health Orientation
This event is being offered twice; both events are exactly the same content. This event is especially appropriate for students in the first half of the MSW program.

Here are several things to keep in mind when planning your participation.

- These events promise to be meaningful and memorable. The School encourages all MSW students to seize these wonderful enrichment opportunities!

- These events are voluntary; if you choose to miss field or a class to attend, you must work that out with your field or classroom instructor in advance.

- Any of the above would satisfy the interprofessional health education requirement for the Rutgers MSW Certificate in Aging and Health. Proof of attendance is required for this purpose.

- For events at the Robert Wood John Medical School (Piscataway), park in Lot B using your Rutgers hangtag. Do not park in metered spaces. Parking rules are relaxed on those days as well.

- All materials for the events will be made available to you just prior to the conference. There is no “homework.”

- Advanced registration is required for these events, and there are limits on the number of seats. Registration information will be sent via e-mail. Make sure to read carefully the emails from the Rutgers School of Social Work’s Office of Student Affairs.

- Contact Patricia Findley, DrPH, MSW, LCSW, Special Assistant to the Dean for Interprofessional Health Initiatives, at the School of Social Work with any further questions. 848-932-5365 or pfindley@ssw.rutgers.edu.
