Our workshops consistently receive top satisfaction scores. Many of you indicate you would like to attend even more workshops; however, cost becomes an issue. We have heard your concerns and have developed the best discount plan in our over 40-year history. Our single-day workshop rate is $129; however, if you register for two workshops, the rate drops to $200. For those of you interested in attending several workshops or a certificate program, the rate is stackable — 4 workshops for $400, 6 for $600, and so on. The discount rate does not apply to multi-day workshops or special programs. Get a jump on your CEHs this time. We hope to see you this spring and summer!

NEW — Online Workshops!
The Office of Continuing Education has opened a new online portal to provide you with a variety of one- and two-hour online trainings. Learn what you want, when you want, where you want. Create your personal account where you can browse the available online trainings, keep track of your completed courses, and download your certificates. The online portal will be regularly updated with new trainings. Contact us if you have interest in uploading a training of your own.

All workshops in this catalog provide approved continuing education hours for New York social workers and New Jersey licensed social workers, professional counselors, marriage and family therapists, and teachers, unless otherwise noted.

Rutgers CEHs are recognized for social workers by most U.S. states. Check your state license board to verify if they are valid in your state.

Our Main Location —
390 George Street
We are in a prime location, with free parking, the train station, and many diverse eateries within easy walking distance.

FREE PARKING
Workshop participants attending trainings at 390 George Street or the Boggs Center can park at the lower Church Street Parking Deck (90 Church Street) for free! You will receive a free gate card to cover the parking cost. Be sure to enter Church Street from Neilson Street.

MINI-CERTIFICATE IN COMPLEX TRAUMA
A Five-Week Series with Monica Indart, PsyD
Develop advanced skills and knowledge in healing complex trauma through intensive training. In this popular program, you will learn a resilience-based, attachment-focused treatment framework to work with adolescents, adults, and older adults. Limited to 20 participants — sign up now! See page 26 for more information.

Leading Experts on Ethics
Meeting your license ethics requirement does not have to be boring. Spend a thought-provoking day with a leading expert on social work ethics. Frederic Reamer, PhD, is one of the nation’s foremost scholars on professional ethics. David Barry is the Chairman of the National Ethics Committee of the NASW and past President of NASW’s New Jersey Chapter. They will each will lead a full-day workshop on ethics at our new site in Somerset, N.J. (easy parking). See page 19 and page 20 for more information.

DBT Intensive Series
Check out our new three-day series on the essential components of dialectical behavior therapy. Clients with severe emotional dysregulations can be extremely difficult to treat. DBT is a proven modality that helps clinicians engage this difficult-to-treat population to help them stabilize and develop a life worth living. See page 11.

NEW — Introduction to Comprehensive Integrative Psychotherapy
Comprehensive Integrative Psychotherapy (CIP) is a psychotherapy model designed to treat the great range of clients who suffer from psychological distress due to negative life experiences in their past. Used in both individual and couples/family treatment, it takes concepts and techniques from psyodynamic psychotherapy and cognitive-behavioral therapy and places them atop a foundation derived from evolutionary psychology. This five-session series provides a powerful treatment road map for both beginning and experienced clinicians. To learn more, see page 9.

Mini-Certificate in Mindfulness Across the Lifespan
There is a wealth of empirical evidence on the physical and emotional benefits of mindfulness practice. In this four-workshop series, you will learn how to incorporate mindfulness with clients across the lifespan — from young children to teenagers to older adults. Learn how to help clients of all ages use mindfulness to address stress, addiction, pain, and other physical and emotional challenges. See page 31.

Helping Couples Get the Love They Want
Do you find working with couples challenging? Most clinicians do. Learn about the widely acclaimed Imago model from the internationally known master trainer Maya Kollman. You are guaranteed to learn new ways of working with couples and will be thoroughly energized to use them in your practice. See page 16.

Bring Training and CEHs to Your Agency
We will develop training for any size organization on virtually any topic and then deliver it at your site. Train all your staff on the same topic at the same time. To find out more, contact us at ce@ssw.rutgers.edu or call 848-932-8758.

Need Ethics and Cultural Competence Workshops?
We have several scheduled this spring and summer. See page 4 for the “Must-Haves in CEHs.”

Rutgers LCSW/LSW Exam Prep Course
Be prepared to pass! Developed by the Office of Continuing Education, this engaging and stimulating workshop will cover what you need to know, teach you proven test-taking strategies, and provide useful practice questions. See page 17.

Want to Become an LCSW? If Yes, READ THIS!
If you are an LSW who wants to become an LCSW, do you know that your clinical supervisor must complete 20 hours of an approved course in clinical supervision before the start of your supervision? Since July 2004, LCSWs who do clinical supervision must first have a minimum of three years of licensure and at least 20 CE hours of a NJBSWE-approved course in supervision. We offer a fully approved dynamic 20-hour clinical supervision series to meet this need. See page 26 for more information.

Track Your CE Progress on Our Website
We have designed our own registration and account management system. Online you can see a list of all our offerings, register for workshops, see your workshop history, get directions to all workshop sites, and even see your progress in each certificate program with “Certificate Advisor”! Just open your web browser and visit socialwork.rutgers.edu/ce.

Single Workshop or Certificate Program? You Decide
All workshops in the catalog can be taken individually. Completing a certificate program is self-paced. Just sign up for any workshop you want. If it is part of a certificate program, we will automatically apply your attendance toward the appropriate certificate. You can track your progress on our website.
All licensed N.J. social workers are required to receive continuing education in ethics and social and cultural competence. We make meeting the requirements easy with a wide selection of engaging workshops. Look for the following throughout the workshop listings:

Clinical Workshops

#5096
Who is Afraid of the Angry Client? Using Schema Therapy to Understand and Treat Angry Modes
Anger is challenging to deal with both interpersonally and professionally. This workshop will provide clinicians with strategies for discerning anger modes as they surface in your clients in the treatment room, such as the angry/enraged child, bullying adolescent, angry/defiantly detached protector, critic, and aggressive overcompensator. You will learn methods for effectively addressing them, including how to “listen” for and recognize the signs of an angry bully, resentful adult, or childlike victim, and know how/when to allow for ventilation, empathically confront, or set limits.
Fee: $129
CEHs: 5 Clinical
Instructor: John F. Gasiewski LCSW, PhD
Date: Monday, April 9, 2018
Time: 9:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.
Location: Rutgers Eco Complex, Bordentown

#5265
Introduction to Comprehensive Integrative Psychotherapy
Comprehensive Integrative Psychotherapy (CIP) is a psychotherapy model designed to treat the great range of clients who suffer from psychological distress due to negative life experiences in their past. Used in both individual and couples/family treatment, it takes concepts and techniques from psychodynamic psychotherapy and cognitive-behavioral therapy and places them atop a foundation derived from evolutionary psychology.
Who this series is for: This intensive series presents a model of psychotherapy that can be easily taught and learned. Early career clinicians can benefit by learning a comprehensive and structured model that applies to most patients yet can be taught concisely and that incorporates interventions from different theories. Experienced clinicians can benefit most from the parts of the model that apply to difficult, “stuck” patients and to those with personality disorders. They can also learn a model that they can use to supervise beginning clinicians to get them up and running in a short period of time.
Day 1: Introduction and Overview of Comprehensive Integrative Psychotherapy.
Day 1 introduces CIP and its basic elements and teaches participants how to interview new clients thoroughly for both symptoms and underlying past causes of psychological (continued on next page)
Day 1: The Dependent Stance is covered in depth along with its possible developmental pathways, and participants are taught how to recognize overdependence, fixated dependence, and counterdependence, and how to treat them. Dependent Stance entitlement is covered as an aspect of overdependence, and excessive displays of distress are covered as an aspect of fixated dependence. Then treatment of counterdependence is covered using education, suggestion, positive reinforcement, and shaping.

The morning session shows how psychodynamic psychotherapy (PP) can be integrated with CBT by accepting that PP and CBT have different conceptualizations of root causes (PP: repression, CBT: maladaptive thoughts and behaviors) that are not mutually exclusive but complementary. It then reconceptualizes the repression model for modern-day society, catalogs the toolboxes of techniques for PP and CBT, and shows how tools from each toolbox can be used to treat both repression and maladaptive thoughts and behaviors. The afternoon session covers basic concepts in evolutionary psychology, and shows how Interpersonal Stances (Dominant, Submissive, Cooperative, Nurturant, Dependent, Romantic, Hate, and Group) are psychological modules programmed into human beings by evolution. It covers how and why these stances become features of personality, and the emotions, thoughts, and behaviors that accompany each one.

Day 3: Dominance, Submission, Abuse, Trauma, Hate — The Authoritarian Complex and How to Treat It.

Day 3 covers issues of power and control over others, including abuse from the perspectives of both abuser and victim. It begins with the Authoritarian Spiral (Dominant and Submissive stances reinforcing each other) and how Submissive Stance clients can be taught to recognize dominance, and the emotions, thoughts, and behaviors that accompany each one.

Day 4: Neediness, Love, and Despair — Treating Attachment Problems and Attachment-Related Personality Problems in CIP.

Day 4 covers attachment issues in CIP and their impacts on emotions, thoughts, and behavior. The emotion of Love is precisely defined and the Attachment Dyad is explained, including both Nurturant and Dependent Stances, along with the blocked emotions and negative ego states typical of attachment-related problems. The Dependent Stance is covered in depth along with its possible developmental pathways, and participants are taught how to recognize overdependence, fixated dependence, and counterdependence, and how to treat them. Dependent Stance entitlement is covered as an aspect of overdependence, and excessive displays of distress are covered as an aspect of fixated dependence. Then treatment of counterdependence is covered using education, suggestion, positive reinforcement, and shaping.

Day 5: Romantic Attraction and Its Frustrations — Treating Clients Who Have No Game, Way Too Much Game, or Who Keep Playing the Wrong Game.

Day 5 covers psychological problems associated with the Romantic Stance, which generates romantic and sexual attraction. Topics include: stuck in the friend zone, subclinical body-dysmorphic disorder (BDD), bad-boy attraction, and serial infidelity. The Romantic Stance is analyzed along with the emotional blockages, negative ego states, and maladaptive behaviors that accompany the various Romantic Stance problems. The Romantic-Submissive Fusion is explained as the source of both bad-boy attraction and being stuck in the friend zone, and treatment of Romantic-Submissive Fusion is explained and discussed. Identifying and treating subclinical BDD using negative ego state treatment is also covered.

#5203 Working With Asian Indian-Hindu Families: Moving Towards Culturally Responsive Interventions

This workshop is designed to offer clinicians strategies and techniques necessary to offer culturally responsive mental health treatment to Asian Indian-Hindu clients. Key concepts of Hinduism, such as the theory of karma, goals of human life, information about the prominent gods/idos that are worshiped, will be discussed. Socio-cultural diversity found among the people of India will be explored in order to understand subcultures. Participants will gain practical information regarding the distinct worldview of Asian Indian-Hindu clients. The workshop will address some challenges that are faced by them as they seek mental health treatment and implications of working with them.

#5772 Positive Parenting

Positive parenting is an approach focused on bringing out the best in kids by focusing on their potential, strengths, and inherent abilities. In many human service settings, parenting education is a key element of the services provided. Whether parents are involved in school-related activities, post-divorce mediation, the child welfare system, mental health services, or self-enrichment programs, parenting education touches the lives and future welfare of thousands of children and their families. By raising children using positive psychology, we can better provide children with a more optimistic and resilient outlook. This positive parenting workshop will focus on establishing nurturing environments, being a role model, and ways to utilize strengths and abilities as a way to create happy and meaningful lives. It’s important to remember that happy parents result in happy children.

#5097 Gestalt Theory, Therapy, and Technique: An Introductory Workshop in the Gestalt Approach

This is an introductory workshop for those interested in gestalt therapy, one of the most dynamic and growth-promoting theories in psychotherapy. In this workshop, we experimentally explore and discuss the major concepts and interventions of gestalt therapy, which emphasizes the primacy of here and now experience and unity of body, mind, and environment. Highlighted areas include the importance of the dialogic therapist/client relationship, phenomenological awareness, experimentation, and the use of the empty chair. Participants will learn theory and technique through lecture, demonstration, and facilitated experiential exercises to help broaden their way of working with clients.

#5492 Successful Treatment for Criminal Justice Clients: A Social Work Perspective

Participants in this workshop will become aware of the diversity and oppression that exist in the prison system. They will recognize the complex makeup of the criminal justice client when addressing the cultural and gender differences within this population. This workshop will also describe the set of symptoms, coined by Terence Gorski, called “Post-Incarcerated Syndrome” (PICS), that is present in currently incarcerated and recently released prisoners, and relate them to successful treatment and discharge.

Creative Approaches to Coping With Self-Mutilation
This workshop is designed for clinicians who are seeking alternative interventions for their clients coping with self-harm behaviors. The intervention is the basis for a book published in 2010. Background information on risk factors and types of self-mutilation are discussed. The intervention, a creative approach to understanding self-mutilation, is based on narrative therapy and will explore how clients can “express” their current life story through narrative techniques. The workshop includes case examples of clients who have gone through group intervention to treat their self-mutilating behaviors, as well as additional resources.

Family Therapy 101
This workshop offers a toolkit for the child/family therapist working in both agency and private practice settings. The goal is to provide attendees with enhanced skills and techniques to build their practice repertoire. The workshop covers the initial intake session with children, including the assessment, historical gathering of family dynamics, and working with symptom presentation. From there, the workshop will provide activities to engage children under 10, address how to optimize the length of the session in regard to age, and how to best include the entire family. The workshop includes techniques on working with teens and how to determine when to refer a child of any age to a higher level of care. Additionally, the workshop will discuss issues of HIPPA compliance and consent/release forms needed on file to ensure continuing care with physicians, teens, and divorced families. This workshop is being offered on two different dates and locations.

Emotional Freedom Techniques (EFT), a Mind-Body Approach to the Anxiety Spectrum Disorders

This how-to-do-it workshop focuses on learning meridian techniques to treat the anxiety spectrum disorders, including simple phobias, generalized anxiety, panic, acute stress reaction, and trauma. These disorders overwhelmingly report physiological symptoms as well as emotional. Learn how to incorporate several complementary and integrative meridian techniques to quell these mind-body complaints, using methods emanating from China and Asia that are 2000 years old. These methods are emerging into the mainstream in both the mental health and coaching arenas. See page 16 for Level II of this workshop. This workshop is being offered on three different dates.

The Neurobiology of Trauma/PTSD

The overall goal of this workshop is for practitioners to understand that the development of post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) is not merely a psychosocial phenomenon and to be better able to provide treatment interventions based on changes in the nervous system. PTSD has been found to be prevalent, but it is important to study PTSD to understand why some individuals develop the disorder and others, also exposed to specific traumatic events, do not. Studying the symptomology of PTSD, as it relates to possible neural mechanisms, may provide some insight toward answering these questions. By the end of this workshop, you will be able to list the three general categories of symptoms exhibited by individuals with PTSD, describe the role of the limbic system in the production of memory dysfunction in traumatized individuals, understand how the hypothalamus and pituitary gland are involved in the “fight or flight” response, and the benefits and side-effects of the most common pharmacological agents used to treat PTSD/trauma.

Clinical Work With LGBTQ Youth

LGBT youth have higher rates of mental health issues, substance abuse, involvement in the child welfare and criminal justice system, and represent half of the homeless youth population in some cities. This workshop utilizes a framework of minority stress theory and attachment-based family therapy and will discuss incorporating this framework into clinical practice. Participants will begin to understand the origins of negative outcomes, preventative strategies, suicide prevention, LGBTQ terminology, and provide local and national resources. We will discuss real case examples, but please bring your own. This workshop will be highly interactive through case example small group and large group discussions, lecture, multimedia, and a quiz to test your knowledge.

How is Anxiety Good for You?
While many do their best to avoid feeling anxious, anxiety is not all bad; in fact, it can be good for you. It functions as a cue for examining how stress is managed and what contributes to an anxious mind. Through the lens of Bowen family systems theory, participants will increase their awareness as to how anxiety impacts them, their family, and workplace; understand what triggers their anxiety; and learn how they can strategically work to ease their anxious mind. This workshop is intended for clinicians interested in increasing their ability to better manage their own anxiety as well as strengthen their therapeutic skills for counseling anxious clients.

Parents as Healers: Dynamic Ways to Integrate Caregivers in Play Therapy
There is increasing evidence that involving parents in play therapy is more effective than treating the child alone. This workshop will teach an overall approach, “Parents as Healers,” where parents/caregivers are dynamically involved in the play therapy process from the beginning. The workshop will provide an overview of some of the most effective parent-led play therapy approaches to address a wide range of mental health issues and will include resources for further study in each method. Approaches covered include: including directive play therapy strategies, cognitive behavioral play therapy, and directive play using principles of dialectical and behavioral therapy. Parents will learn to enable the caregiver to be the primary “healer” in the session while making their concerns a priority and having them continue the healing with home-based strategies. Play therapy credit cannot be awarded to non-mental health professionals.

Practical Parenting Toolbox

The purpose of this engaging multimedia workshop is to teach professionals an overview of practical, “ready to use” skills regarding parenting techniques. The overarching goal of the workshop is to help professionals hone techniques that are necessary for the ever-changing and dynamic world that is the hallmark of modern parenting. These objectives include developing an understanding of what a child is attempting to communicate, versus what they say, and the multitude of skills youth utilize to get what they want. There will be an exploration and recognition of one’s idiosyncratic parenting/personality style(s). The workshop will additionally gain better understanding of punishment versus discipline and how to teach logical and natural consequences as a manner of parental philosophy. The workshop will conclude with a look at why behavioral contracts and reward systems succeed or fail and a review of common topics such as sibling rivalry and peer pressure.

#5260  Gestalt Theory, Therapy, Technique Level II
This gestalt level II workshop will deepen your understanding of gestalt theory and its application in the therapy session. The workshop will build upon the theory and therapy techniques covered in the introductory gestalt workshop, including a deeper exploration of field theory, the paradoxical theory of change, figure and ground, the contact cycle, self-regulation, and creative adjustment. Participants will learn both theory and technique, with an emphasis on contact and experimentation. Participants will learn to clinically assess contact and contact interruptions, and the concept of therapeutic dialogue will be introduced. Gestalt work is quite experiential and therefore learning will be a bit more experiential in nature for this level II workshop. Participants will come away with knowledge and practical tools to begin layering the gestalt approach into their work.

#5085  Positive Psychology for Clinical Practice
This workshop will explore the rapidly growing and exciting field of positive psychology. In the past we have focused on what is wrong and not working in our lives. Positive psychology is the scientific study of well-being and optimal functioning. It is a strengths-based approach to mental health that uses coaching as a process. This practical science can be applied to help people increase their well-being, build resiliency, learn their strengths, and enhance their overall life satisfaction. Positive psychology interventions can help clients alleviate and prevent mild to moderate depression and help people bounce back from adversity and feel happier. Teaching happiness skills to clients will improve their physical and emotional health. We know that happiness is also one of the most effective health interventions. Clinicians will learn techniques that will be useful additions to their practices and support their own well-being.

#5061  Dealing With Angry Students and Tantrums Effectively
It seems each year we are faced with more and more students who are getting angrier and angrier. Why are our students angry? How do we deal with students when they are annoyed, frustrated, or otherwise irritated? What works and what does not? In this informative workshop, we will attempt to briefly look at the context that seems to foster these students. Then, and most important, we will look at practical and simple tools that can be used immediately to decrease the incidence of tantrums and angry behaviors within the school, mental health, and home settings. The goal of this workshop will be to supplement your existing skills with new tools you can quickly implement when working with these students during their most challenging states.

#5262 Understanding the Immigration Process and Supporting Immigrant Families Through Their Traumatic Experiences

Immigrants experience many traumatic experiences on their journey to arrive in the United States. Immigrants to the U.S. experience stress related to acculturation, discrimination, employment, legal status and potential deportation, language acquisition, and separation from family and community of origin. They also experience many losses — loss of family, friends, professional status, language, culture, and sense of belonging. This workshop will review the immigration process and the traumatic experiences, along with common issues such as family separation and reattachment. It will provide a trauma-focused lens on working with this population.

#5263 The Emotional Freedom Technique (EFT) and Tapping: Level II Evidence-Based Treatment for Emotional and Physical Pain

Level II EFT is for clinicians who want to continue to fine tune and expand their EFT skills. Prerequisite is having taken any day-long EFT training, including those in this catalog and have recently practiced EFT at least 10 times with yourself, friends, clients, or colleagues. After a quick review to assure all are on the same page, we will move quickly using EFT to desensitize issues and upsets in the present, past, and the future, and to free the individual to take thoughtful action. There are now over 80 published research articles proving EFT is evidence-based practice. We will also review the pain protocol as an alternative to opioid medication, a possible preventive model in this horrible opioid epidemic.

#5264 Triggered in Sessions? Tools to Handle Delicate Situations

All clinicians occasionally experience some reactions or countertransference when working with a particular client. This workshop offers guidance and a toolkit to be used in the management of delicate moments when we, the clinicians, get triggered. Using lecture, discussion, and optional experiential activities, we will learn some of the typical indications that you may be triggered and/or in a dissociative state. This workshop explores why it matters if and when you are triggered, and participants will process when and how to calm the body and mind, as well as how to use the wealth of information our reactions provide about the therapeutic process taking place. The workshop goals include an understanding of why we might get triggered, how to resource ourselves when we are in session, and to explore implications in support of our clients. This workshop will provide attendees with enhanced skills and techniques to further build their practice repertoire.

#4113 If It Isn’t in Writing, It Didn’t Happen: Documentation to Protect Your Client, Yourself, and Your Organization
Documentation is vital part of the professional’s responsibility; however, it is often given insufficient attention. Writing progress notes, reports, and letters requires the human service professional to consider many factors, including the purpose of the communication, the recipient of the communication, and the goal(s) of the writer. This workshop will focus best practices in professional documentation for social workers and other professionals with topics including, but not limited to, how to memorialize your assessment, prognosis, and action plan in your documentation; how to appropriately convey these issues in communications to others; when to draft reports narrowly versus broadly; how to advocate and persuade on your client’s behalf; how to convey objectivity; and ethical and legal issues in documentation. #4183 Moving from Self-Criticism to Self-Care: The Healing Power of Self-Compassion

Most people raised in Western cultures have been socialized to believe that expression of self-confidence is egotistical and that self-acceptance and self-compassion will hamper their motivation to succeed and to reach their highest potential. Thus, few of us give ourselves the loving-kindness, forgiveness, and acceptance we can freely give to a dear friend, a partner, a colleague, or even a stranger. In fact, our self-talk is often riddled with self-criticism, self-doubt, and continual comparison with unattainable images and standards. Current research is confirming that these long-held beliefs are myths that are actually negatively affecting our physical, as well as our emotional health. There is evidence that self-compassion can create emotional healing, reduce anxiety, improve health, enhance quality of life, and even facilitate weight loss! This workshop will present the current research on self-compassion, including case studies of its transformative effects. Participants will learn to practice techniques and exercises to cultivate self-compassion that they can teach to clients and use in their own lives.

#4206 Social Media: The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly from a Social Work Perspective

This workshop will examine the impact social media, music, and advertising have on today’s society. Overexposure to certain media outlets can influence how people develop their value system and how they make decisions on moral issues and peer relationships. We know this to be particularly true with individuals who have experienced trauma and significant losses. By examining music, videos, and advertising campaigns, we identify the negative impact of imagery and subliminal messages and discuss ways to help individuals identify why they make the choices they make online. We will explore how to increase media literacy by educating and empowering individuals to use critical thinking skills and to see the direct and unintended consequences associated with technology. The importance of legislative advocacy will also be discussed.

#4923 Safety in Practice

In any helping profession, direct contact with families and clients is essential to practice. Risk is an inevitable part of this relationship and can present in multiple forms. Interpersonal, environmental, and emotional risks are all a part of reasonable expectation of the work. The question becomes how can we practice in a way that mitigates risk and preserves the positive relationship between providers and those in need. This workshop is a multifaceted delivery that includes assessment of the persons with whom your interact, associated persons, and ways to minimize likelihood of harm. The workshop addresses the physical environment, what to look for, and how to identify and prepare for or react to threats seen or unseen. The workshop presents with strong emphasis on awareness and preparedness.

Fatherhood
What is the role of the modern-day father, and how do we cultivate a climate of participation and inclusion? Modern-day family structure and concept are morphing on a regular basis. As a result of divorce and children born of unwed parents, the definition and role of parents requires purposeful action and clear intent with family. Is the system inherently biased? While children historically have tended to remain primarily with the moms, does a father’s involvement really make that much of a difference? And what about the fathers who are physically present yet are functional absentees? This training highlights the correlation between positive involvement by fathers in their children’s lives and the dynamic structural and systemic elements that impose barriers to healthy involvement. Best strategies to connect and support greater father involvement are highlighted.

Walking the Four-Fold Way: How Ancient Archetypes Can Inform End-of-Life Care
End-of-life care must go beyond the traditional medical model in order to provide a more holistic approach to the support of terminally ill patients and their families. This includes addressing the physical, psychosocial, and spiritual needs of both the patient and the family. This interactive workshop builds on the foundational work of cultural anthropologist and author Dr. Angeles Arrien, with specific examples of how ancient archetypes and their associated human characteristics can assist hospice professionals to be present, caring, and supportive of patients and families and the challenges they face at the end of life. We will explore ancient archetypes found among indigenous peoples and cultures, including the warrior/leader, healer, visionary, and teacher and their associated human resources and characteristics of power, love, creativity, and wisdom. For each archetype and resource, we will explore relevant skills and applications to effective clinical work with terminally ill patients and families. Co-Occurring Disorders: Going Beyond the Boundaries of Diagnosis
We used to call individuals with mental illness and co-occurring substance use disorders a “special” population, but over the years we have become aware that the prevalence is so great that they are our population. This workshop is designed for helping professionals who may need hope, understanding, and methods for dealing with the most difficult of behaviors. An overview of the development of disorders, the interrelationship of mental illness and substance use, levels of severity, and how to sort through symptoms of each disorder will be explored. We will explore how attention to diagnosis, rather than attention to the total person can complicate engagement and treatment. This workshop will provide underlying principles for assessment, diagnosis, treatment, and recovery support that can be provided in any agency in any system.

Escape from the Land of the Hungry Ghosts: Using Meditation to Enhance Addictions Treatment and Recovery
Life’s difficult issues have an enormous impact on our attitudes, interactions, and ability to function, and they can impact our ability to embrace spirituality, meaning, and purpose. Quality recovery and life management depend on caring for all aspects of self. We need a concrete framework of what it means to be spiritual and how we can tap into spirituality daily. This workshop offers a bio-psycho-social understanding of life and recovery management, with an emphasis on using tools like meditation to clarify and enhance treatment and recovery work. This workshop weaves the principles, goals, and impact of each of the 12 steps with specific meditations designed to enhance the working of each step. Techniques will be explored for use with self and with clients to promote relaxation, manage stress, and encourage wellness and resiliency. No matter what level of stress or recovery you may have, this workshop will give you insight on the use of several meditative techniques to enhance spirituality and recovery work — especially when using the 12 steps. Wear loose, comfortable clothes for this workshop!

What Does Recovery Look Like? Understanding Recovery Through a Person-Centered Lens
The goal of this workshop is to help participants move from an “all or nothing” understanding of recovery to a new paradigm of recovery from different perspectives. By using a person-centered approach, the presenters will explore models of recovery, including harm reduction and abstinence based models, medication-assisted recovery (including the use of Suboxone, Naltrexone, Vivitrol, and Methadone), an overview of psychosocial interventions such as motivational interviewing and dialectical behavioral therapy (DBT), and the role of individual factors in recovery. This will include a discussion of dopamine and its role in addiction, as well as helping clients learn how to replenish their own dopamine by stimulating personal sources of joy and hope in their lives.

Current Drug Trends and Emerging Drugs of Abuse
Many new drugs are making local and national headlines, such as K2/Spice and bath salts. This interactive workshop will discuss the latest developments and information regarding synthetic cannabinoids, MDPV, mephedrone, kratom, salvia, and other designer drugs that have been emerging over the past few years. Workshop participants will be introduced to the physiology of these drugs and how they can possibly impact, mimic, and exacerbate mental health disorders such as anxiety and depressive disorders. Epidemiologic trends in drug abuse in both youth and adults will be discussed, as will the latest trends for 2013 from the New Jersey Division of Addiction Services. Workshop participants will participate in interactive discussions and exercises in differential diagnosis of similar symptoms produced by these emerging drugs of abuse and other mental health disorders. Patterns of use, abilities for urine detection, and other legal aspects regarding these emerging drugs will be discussed.

The Dynamics of Addiction, Domestic Violence, and Child Abuse
It is clear that all forms of abuse are destructive. This workshop will address the interrelationships between addiction, domestic violence, and child abuse and the devastating impact they have on all involved. We will explore the values of maintaining dysfunction and what it takes to interrupt the process. The increased concerns over stress in the hostile home environment will also be discussed. This workshop will utilize mixed modalities of presentation.

Brief Therapeutic Practices and Lifestyle Changes to Enhance Recovery
Lifestyle and behavioral choices have a profound impact on the health of adults and may contribute to premature death, particularly for those with addiction and/or mental health issues. One of the best ways to improve on this outcome is for a person to be in a solid and consistent wellness/recovery program. This workshop focuses on presenting and learning brief therapeutic practices that can be taught during group or individual sessions to enhance clients’ recovery efforts.

Ways in which stress management, breath work, exercise, and nutrition can improve one’s recovery program will be examined. Through lecture, role play, and live demonstrations, participants will learn 10 setup behaviors that can undermine recovery and lead to relapse, 5 ways heart health can strengthen recovery, 15 brief therapeutic practices to enhance recovery, 5 ways the fight/flight response impacts one’s overall health and recovery process, and 5 ways exercise improves one’s mental health and long-term recovery. Because this workshop is highly experiential, informal dress and comfortable shoes are recommended.

Ethical and Legal Issues in Substance Abuse Counseling

This interactive workshop focuses on the major elements of legal and ethical issues for those clinicians working in the substance abuse field. It is important to know that the legal/ethical standards for working with substance abusing clients were updated in October 2009. This workshop covers those changes and more. Legal areas include scope of clinical and supervisory practice, malpractice, duty to warn, informed consent, confidentiality, the impaired professional, and the ADA. Ethical areas covered include workplace harassment, dual relationships, and an overview of the division of consumer affairs LCADC/CADC ethical standards. This workshop does not qualify for NBCC clock hours in

The Link Between Trauma and Substance Abuse: Causes, Signs, and Treatment Indications

This workshop is designed to educate both the substance abuse counselor and mental health professional on the prevalence of substance abuse and post-traumatic stress disorder, and the importance of cross education for themselves to ensure the best outcomes for their client. The workshop begins with an overview of the long history of specific populations who are most often treatment outcomes when the attempt is made to treat each separately and not con-

Addictions in the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer (LGBTQ) Communities:
If Gay Means Happy, Why Am I Always Getting High?

LGBTQ people are more likely to use alcohol, tobacco, and other drugs than the general population. They are also less likely to abstain from alcohol, tobacco, and other drugs; they report higher rates of substance abuse problems; and they are more likely to continue heavy drinking into later life. The workshop examines the complexity of sexual identity and gender expression, social and cultural variables, mental health, and trauma history that influence problematic use, abuse, and dependence on alcohol, tobacco, drugs, and other addictions. Participants will be better able to provide LGBTQ-affirmative treatment interventions in helping clients to enact behavior changes in the process of recovery from addictions. This workshop does not

Clinical and Normative Issues Within Adult Adoptee Populations

There is a gap between the literature and current treatment methods for young adult and adult adopted persons who present for counseling services. This interactive workshop will utilize small group discussion, case vignettes, videos, and lecture to bridge that gap. This workshop will enable participants to define the developmental tasks of young adult and adult adoptees, review the current professional literature on this population’s clinical needs, and identify common areas of clinical concern for this population. These areas include but are not limited to launching to college, long-term partner relationships, parenthood, search and reunion, and “second adolescence” in regard to identity development. Participants will be introduced to models useful in developing a treatment plan for this population, including the cultural racial identity model (CRIM) and the adult

Play Therapy Techniques That You Can Use Today
Play is the language of the child. Attempting to assess and treat children in a primary talk therapy modality can be difficult for the client and the clinician. Play therapy is growing in popularity in the mental health professions and is recognized as an effective means of addressing many developmental and psychological issues of children and adolescents. In this workshop, play and art techniques for assessment, intervention, and termination in individual, group, and family therapy will be presented through lecture, experientially, and through case discussion. The presenter will discuss what the most basic play therapy materials needed are and provide cost-effective strategies for making or obtaining the basic tools. Participants will leave the workshop prepared with the information, enthusiasm, and confidence to start using play techniques immediately. Play therapy credit will not be awarded to non-mental health professionals.

Normality or Pathology: An Exploration of Child Development and Mental Health
Where does normality end and pathology begin? This question is especially pertinent for clinicians working with children whose developmental stage has a tremendous impact on their current level of functioning. This workshop will explore the interrelationship between children’s developmental stages and interpersonal functioning with peers and within family relationships. Participants will move along developmental lines, from separation anxiety to separation and individuation, and explore what separates “normal” child development struggles from extremes in behavior indicative of a range of mental health issues. Participants will also explore age-appropriate treatment approaches.

Psychopharmacology With Children and Adolescents
A comprehensive psychiatric assessment is crucial for determining the appropriate use of psychotropic medications as part of mental health treatment of children or adolescents. This workshop explores the basic classes of psychotropic medications, their indications for use, and their common side effects. The insights provided in this workshop are pertinent to all clinicians working with children on psychotropic medication. This knowledge enables good collaboration among mental health professionals and strengthens the client-clinician relationship. This workshop is being offered on two different dates and locations.

Complex Trauma in Children
Exposure to multiple traumatic events early in life within the context of the caregiving system can have profound and long-lasting impacts. These experiences affect how people experience others and react to events, and they often lead to dysfunction in a variety of ways: problems in establishing stable relationships, problems managing emotions, problems controlling behavior, and problems in planning and following through on plans. The difficulties typically go beyond the basic criteria for PTSD. Often, these children do not have narrative memories for the events that occurred. If the problems they present are not understood as reactions to complex trauma, the interventions chosen to address them are not helpful and the children often fail in the many systems they enter. This workshop will provide an overview of what constitutes complex trauma, the ways in which individuals with these histories are impacted, as well as a discussion of how understanding these issues can make our interventions more successful.

This workshop will provide participants with an introduction to attachment theory and its relevance to clinical practice with at-risk children and their families. Important contributors to attachment theory, as well as their research, will be reviewed. More recent research on attachment and neurobiology, particularly by Alan Schore, will be discussed. Participants will learn about the importance of sensitivity in fostering a healthy parent-child relationship, thereby laying the foundation for future mental health. Participants will learn to evaluate parent-child interactions within the context of sensitivity and will learn strategies to improve parental sensitivity. Cultural issues and their impact on parenting and sensitivity, as well as implications for the therapist-client relationship, will also be discussed.

#5655 Legal and Ethical Issues in Child/Adolescent Mental Health
Instructor: Colleen Daly Martinez, PhD, LCSW
Date: Friday, June 1, 2018
Time: 9:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.
Location: 390 George St., New Brunswick
CERTIFICATE REQUIREMENT

This workshop will outline the legal and ethical requirements in providing mental health services to children and adolescents. The first half of the workshop will set out the legal framework as defined by relevant statute and case law. This segment of the workshop will devote particular attention to the provisions of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) and their applicability within various treatment settings. The second half of the workshop will focus on handling and resolving the ethical dilemmas that may arise in the treatment of children and minor adolescents, with particular attention to confidentiality issues. This workshop does not qualify for NBCC clock hours in ethics.

Mini-Certificate in Complex Trauma

Drawing upon the most current conceptualizations of complex trauma, this five-day workshop will provide in-depth training in working with issues of complex trauma with older adolescents, adults, and older adults. The workshop is designed for both clinicians new to working with complex trauma-spectrum problems, as well as for more experienced clinicians in various clinical settings. Clinicians will learn the essential principles of a phase-oriented, relational approach. Utilizing a resilience-based, attachment-focused framework, clinicians will experience how to provide the necessary conditions for safely assisting clients in healing from complex traumatic disorders. In order to foster the kind of depth-oriented learning required to address the topic, the workshop is designed as a “closed cohort model,” i.e., the same group of participants will be enrolled for the five-day sequence, working closely in small groups for maximum participation.

#8886 Mini-Certificate in Complex Trauma
A Five-Week Series
Fee: $750
CEHs: 25 Clinical
Instructor: Monica Indart, PsyD
Location: 390 George St., New Brunswick
See the series dates below:

WEEK ONE: Current Conceptualizations and Biopsychosocial Assessment of Complex Trauma
This module provides an introduction to the series, as well as a theoretical foundation for the intervention approach. The developmental etiology and neurobiological consequences of complex trauma will be reviewed through the lens of current research on attachment. Potential psychological and physical consequences of untreated complex trauma across the lifespan will be discussed. Clinical assessment of complex trauma will be reviewed, through the use of case vignettes and videotapes, highlighting managing the clinical interview, engaging the client, and setting the stage for treatment. Risk/vulnerability and resilience profiles will be presented so participants can understand the range of complexity inherent in treating complex trauma.
Date: Tuesday, April 10, 2018
Time: 9:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.

WEEK TWO: Differential Diagnosis and Ethical Issues Encountered in the Treatment of Complex Trauma and Phase-Oriented Treatment Model
The morning module focuses on diagnostic dilemmas that clinicians face in accurately assessing complex trauma, as well as the ethical issues that are commonly encountered in working with individuals suffering from this type of distress. Identifying commonly misdiagnosed “presentations” of complex trauma, avoiding clinical pitfalls that can lead to ethical dilemmas, and adopting a process and outcome-focused treatment response model are presented as essential prerequisites to working with these issues. Case vignettes and small group exercises will provide experiential learning opportunities. The afternoon module presents an overview of the phase-oriented, relational approach (Courtois and Ford, 2013) that provides clinical guidelines for maintaining safety, providing structure, responding to particular reactions and issues, and managing the clinical disruptions that are inherent in the treatment of these trauma-spectrum problems.
Date: Tuesday, April 17, 2018
Time: 9:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.

WEEK THREE: Implementation of the Phase-Oriented Treatment of Complex Trauma
The focus of this module will be on matching client needs to treatment sequences and interventions. The morning session will focus on applying the phase-oriented relational approach to trauma-spectrum problems through the use of case vignettes, videotapes, and small group practice exercises. The afternoon session will review evidence-based treatment models, such as cognitive processing therapy, prolonged exposure therapy, EMDR, sensorimotor psychotherapy and narrative exposure therapy as examples of clinical approaches that can be integrated within the phase-oriented model. Continued practice exercises in small groups of three will focus on applying essential skills to case vignettes. Time permitting, case consultation and discussion will be provided at the end of this module.
Date: Tuesday, April 24, 2018
Time: 9:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.

WEEK FOUR: Building a Complex Trauma Model: Essential Practice Principles
This module further develops and deepens the competencies acquired through previous modules, focusing on integrating and applying best practice approaches to working with complex trauma across a variety of settings and populations. Drawing upon the experience of the prominent clinicians and scholars in the field, application of a complex trauma model is reviewed and discussed, with continued practice of specific clinical situations, such as working with the dissociative client, addressing safety needs in real-world contexts of domestic violence, and providing culturally responsive approaches to traumatic grief. This module concludes with an experiential segment on self-care for clinicians and developing communities of practice to sustain trauma workers in the field.

Date: Tuesday, May 1, 2018
Time: 9:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.

WEEK FIVE: Self-Care, Communities of Practice, and Resilience in the Real World

The morning section will focus on self-care and why it is an ethical imperative for clinicians who work with trauma to focus on their own wellness. Didactic and experiential exercises will be integrated throughout. The morning will conclude with a discussion of building “communities of practice” that can sustain the vitality of this important work through providing support and guidance for clinicians. The afternoon section will examine the latest research on resilience — its role and its limitations — in attachment-focused complex trauma interventions. This module further develops and deepens the competencies acquired through previous modules and focuses on integrating and applying best practice approaches in working with complex trauma across a variety of settings and populations. Drawing upon the experience of prominent clinicians and scholars in the field, specific issues are examined in the “real world” application of a complex trauma model, such as culturally informed/culturally responsive trauma treatment, working with dissociative clients, and addressing safety needs in the contexts of interpersonal violence.

Involvement with service systems for individuals with developmental disabilities begins for many families when their children are infants, toddlers, and preschoolers. Families’ experiences with early intervention and early childhood special education services set the tone for their participation with service systems throughout their children’s upbringing. In this workshop, participants will be presented with an overview of New Jersey’s Early Intervention and Early Childhood Special Education Systems, including the process of identification and referral, evaluation, program planning, delivery of services, and transition. The roles of social workers and the rights of families under each system will also be highlighted.

#3005 Multicultural Perspectives in Developmental Disabilities

In this workshop, participants will learn about ways for exploring and discovering the values and belief systems that shape the behavior of various ethnic groups and the ways that various cultures approach the understanding of disabilities, services, and supports. The focus will be on helping participants understand the ways that culture impacts their own identity and that of people they serve. We will explore ways that a commitment to cultural competence is crucial for effective relationships with people in many areas of concern and practice. The workshop will also examine some of the major ethnic groups in New Jersey and strategies/resources for interaction with those communities.

#3025 Community Services and Supports for Adults With Disabilities: Evolving Approaches

Over the past years, the approach utilized in supporting adults with developmental disabilities has been evolving and changing from an institution-based service delivery system to a community-based system of supports and services. This has also led to shifting of roles and responsibilities for the professionals, from one of organizing services to working with people to determine what they want in their lives. In this workshop, participants will be presented with an overview of these changes, the current approaches to planning, and their impact on the delivery system. Participants will be given the opportunity to apply these planning methods as they look for ways to assist adults with developmental disabilities to plan their futures.

$129 — Single Workshop(s). Sign up for any workshop below at any time. No application and no supervision participation requirements. Up to three workshops in the year immediately before institute-level program enrollment may be counted towards the institute-level program requirements.

#5300 Intervention Planning in K-12 Settings for Students Engaging in Repeated Behavior Problems
The purpose of this workshop is to provide participants with tools and resources for understanding why behavior patterns form and how to select and plan for interventions. Workshop content will focus on three topics: assessing behavior patterns, developing a competing pathway for intervention planning, and intervention implementation and progress monitoring. Participants will apply the information through various activities and use of a case study. Participants will have electronic access to all tools and resources for use in their district.

#5442 Are “Squeaky Wheel” Children a Self-Fulfilling Prophecy? The Challenge of Developing Reality-Based Relationships With Our Children
A child's degree of relationship dependence is a product of forces that promote and undermine that child’s emotional separation from the family. According to Bowen family systems theory, when parent and child functioning promotes emotional separation, the emotional maturity level is maintained between generations. When their functioning undermines separation, parental generation immaturity is transmitted to the next generation. Family projection process, a Bowen theory concept, describes how parents instill part of their immaturity into children. Typically the parent becomes less anxious by focusing on one or more of their children. Their partner, sensitive to the caregivers’ anxiety, supports their involvement with these children. Projection process steps are explored where a parent focuses on a child, fearing something is wrong with that child; interprets the child’s behavior as confirming that fear; and treats the child as if something is really wrong with that child.

#5466 Wherever I Go, There I Am (Eventually) — Repercussions of Escaping an “Impossible” Family
Emotional cutoff, a Bowen family systems theory concept, describes how unresolved emotional issues with parents, siblings, and other family members are managed by reducing or totally cutting off emotional contact with them — moving away and rarely going home or by staying in physical contact but avoiding sensitive issues. “Escaping” their families-of-origin and determined to be different, they invest strongly in their “new” families or develop substitute families with friends or organizations, investing much more emotionally in them than their families-of-origin. While a cutoff may relieve immediate pressure and lower anxiety, the vulnerability of intense relationships remains, making it likely a more intense version of the past (or its mirror image) is replicated in the present. Covering cutoff origins and consequences, this workshop also explores how bridging cutoffs provides a path out of recreating the past in the present nuclear family while reducing anxiety and improving personal and relationship functioning.

#1161 Memory Care Innovation — Practical Tools, Tips, Techniques, and Approaches
Step into the world of memory care. This interactive workshop will offer participants the opportunity to gain a better understanding of dementia. Practical and person-directed approaches to caring for someone with dementia will be shared. Participants will learn how to apply behavioral analysis methods to understand and effectively manage dementia-related behavioral expressions utilizing non-pharmacological approaches. Engaging with and celebrating the uniqueness of persons with dementia at all stages will be highlighted throughout the day.

Practical Case Management With Older Adults

Case management practice is based on two important principles. The first involves respect and support for independence. The second involves the principle of using the least restrictive alternative in helping clients with lifestyle changes. You will learn practical skills such as making realistic plans with the client, determining the frequency and nature of client contacts needed to implement the case plan, using existing support systems, addressing cultural and ethnic factors, ongoing assessment, networking effectively with other agencies, clarifying respective roles, and scheduling case management time and case recording.

Emotional Process in Society — How It Promotes Regressive and Progressive Periods and Its Influence on Families

Societal emotional process, a Bowen concept, describes how both progressive and regressive periods in societies are strongly influenced by an emotional system operating on a societal level. During regressive periods, societies and their leaders tend to take easy ways out for addressing challenging issues, and it is not until the pain associated with these short-term strategies begins to exceed the pain associated with acting on long-term views that societies emerge into progressive periods. This workshop will explore the challenges for families as parents attempt to raise children in periods of societal regression compared to raising children in more progressive periods.

#1070 Psychotherapy and Counseling With Older Adults
This workshop will dispel the all-too-common assumption that psychotherapy and counseling are not effective treatment modalities with senior adults. Contrary to the belief that seniors are “inflexible and stuck in their ways” as well as having diminished cognitive and reflective capacity, studies indicate that they can benefit as much from these modalities as younger persons, albeit with some different approaches, techniques, and goals. In this workshop, we will consider the special strengths and challenges of senior adults, the place of their particular life-cycle issues, and how to understand and use transference, resistance, support, and interpretation in working with this population. Many case examples and exercises will be offered.

#1090 Understanding and Improving Relationships in Later Life
Relationships in older adults are varied, rich, and complex. The quality of these relationships has an enormous impact on the coping ability of clients and their caregivers. Providers of treatment are often drawn into interpersonal dynamics that evolve from complex family histories and depleted caregivers. In this workshop, aging trends, developmental theories, and treatment issues related to late-life relationships will be explored. Participants will gain a better understanding of the impact of these dynamics on the care of clients in community and medically based settings. Solutions to assisting clients and their family members in their interactions with one another while they face treatment issues, illness, addiction, death, grief, and loss will be offered. Opportunities to assist clients who are seeking peace and resolution in their relationships will also be discussed.

#1130 The Secret Life of Hoarding
According to the International OCD Foundation (IOCDF), “Hoarding has been a hidden disorder for many years and before the early 1990s, there was little research on topic.” Increased awareness of hoarding, throughout the lifespan, has occurred due to clinical issues such as unhealthy living conditions that impact individuals, families, and communities. This workshop will concentrate on the older adult who meets the criteria of hoarding disorder as per the DSM-5. Participants will practice skills in working with the older adult who meets these criteria, as well as identifying strategies for family members who are involved with an older adult who is diagnosed with this disorder.

#4162 East and West Converge in the Present Moment: How Mindfulness Practice Activates Innate Healing and Happiness
Mindfulness involves focusing awareness and non-judgmental attention to the experience of the present moment. Modern-day scientists are identifying a wealth of empirical evidence of the physical and emotional benefits of mindfulness practice that Eastern masters have known for centuries. As a result, mindfulness skills are increasingly being taught by therapists and other health professionals to help clients address stress, addiction, pain, and other physical and emotional challenges. This workshop will provide participants with an update on the latest scientific findings as well as the opportunity to learn and practice a variety of mindfulness exercises. As Jon Kabat-Zinn, founder of the Harvard mindfulness-based stress reduction (MBSR) program has stated, “You can’t stop the waves, but you can learn to surf.”

Current research in neuroscience is giving us a better understanding of the teenage brain. The changes that occur in brain circuitry during this period offer fertile opportunities for creativity and growth, while also creating risks for impulsivity and dangerous behavior. Mindfulness practices show great promise in giving teens powerful tools to navigate this important life stage and a rewarding adulthood, as well. The latest research in teaching mindfulness to children demonstrates that they experience better focus and concentration, increased patience and frustration tolerance, improved relationship skills, stronger impulse control, and an ability to handle stress in healthier ways. Teaching mindfulness to children gives them the keys to social and emotional intelligence and the awareness they need to succeed in this era of ever-increasing stressors and demands. It may be the most powerful play there is! This workshop blends the latest scientific research about mindfulness and its effects on the brain and body with activities, games, and playful practices that have been proven to resonate with children. Nonprofit and Public Management

#7691 Stress Management for Managers and Supervisors
Program managers are responsible for the bottom line in their programs. They also are in the middle position in the organization — between the executive director and the direct practice social workers. This creates stress and can lead to stress-related illness, increased anxiety, and other health issues. This workshop will explore triggers to stress and ways to address those triggers not only for the program manager but for his or her team. Models for how to create a work culture of wellness and balance will be presented and discussed.

Trauma-Informed Programs: A Forum for Agency Planning and Change

This workshop is designed for program administrators, supervisors, and individuals who have a desire to develop a trauma-informed care setting and who can effect systems change within their agency. We will set a foundation for systems change by reviewing how trauma impacts those we serve. Participants will review and utilize the elements of a trauma-informed system of care as we perform an agency self-assessment of staff and program readiness to incorporate trauma into the treatment milieu. Through both small and large group discussion, we shall share strategies and boost your potential to create growth within your agency. Because sustainability is always a factor with change, we will develop plans to identify the trauma champions within your program structure who will provide that reinforcement and accountability. An important part of the process, we shall also refine a supervision model that can be incorporated into your agency. Roll up your sleeves and be trauma informed!

#5880 Understanding the Impact of Trauma and Community Violence

Trauma has sometimes been defined in reference to circumstances that are outside the realm of normal human experience. Unfortunately, this definition does not always hold true for the clients with whom we work. For some, trauma can occur frequently and become part of the common human experience, especially community violence. The results of trauma and community violence can influence and compound our clients’ difficulties. This training provides an overview of trauma and community violence, and explores the impact the two phenomena have on clients. The training is also designed to give professionals tools to address the residual effects of trauma and community violence with their clients. Additionally,
This workshop will focus primarily on community organizing and will help prepare participants to be effective leaders in advocating for their clients and social justice. This workshop will examine the history of community organizing in the United States, as well as the different theories and approaches to effective grassroots organizing. Particular attention will be given to applying professional ethics in all community organizing activities. Participants will leave the workshop with a clearer understanding of how they can apply these approaches and theories to their everyday practice. This workshop does not qualify for NBCC clock hours in ethics.

Environmental Justice: A Social Work Perspective

The water crisis in Flint, the Dakota Access Pipelines, disastrous hurricanes in the Caribbean islands, and the earthquakes in Mexico — when environmental issues impact marginalized populations, social workers are always called to action. Social workers are trained to navigate systems with the goal of improving client outcomes. In this workshop, participants will examine the organic relationship between social work and the physical environment, expand their fund of knowledge on eco-sensitive practices, and will learn three theories that are inclusive of the natural environment. The term “person-in-environment” is often used in social work. Ironically, this cornerstone social work concept has, over time, come to refer primarily to the social environment. Participants will walk away with ways in which they can positively impact the earth through more eco-sensitive social work practices.

School-to-Prison Pipeline: Understanding the Relationship Between School Discipline, Dropping Out, and Incarceration

The school-to-prison pipeline is an epidemic that is plaguing schools across the nation. Far too often, students are suspended, expelled, or even arrested for minor offenses that leave visits to the principal’s office a thing of the past. Statistics reflect that these policies disproportionately target students of color and those with a history of abuse, neglect, poverty, or learning disabilities. The purpose of this workshop is to begin to examine the root causes and repercussions of the school-to-prison pipeline on today’s youth; understand the impact race, gender, and poverty have on this epidemic; and empower participants to make changes in their schools and communities. #8008 The Impact of Gangs on Trauma-Informed Care

Gangs have become their own cultural dynamic in the community today. Intergenerational gang membership has redefined the concept of family and family values. Gang values have reshaped our neighborhoods and community to the extent violence has become an accepted way of life. After completing this workshop, you will be able to better understand how gangs have become their own culture and the impact that gangs have on both the behavioral and mental health issues faced today in our communities. As a result, you will broaden your knowledge and understanding of common gang signs and identifiers found in our communities today. Examples will be given as to the roles and responsibilities of community agencies and the importance of inter-agency collaboration as it relates to addressing gang involvement and gang violence in the community. This workshop will better help you identify the community’s responsibility for how to protect children and support families as it relates to...

#5850 Foundations and Models of Crisis Intervention and Trauma Response

This two-day workshop will examine the history of crisis intervention and trauma response over the past century. This will be done as a means to understand the current response models and intervention techniques that will be specified and discussed, particularly as they relate to different affected populations (civilians, first responders, schools, etc.). Relevant research will be considered as a means to evaluate the effectiveness of these crisis response models. Community resources related to crisis and trauma will be identified. This workshop will include lecture, discussion, and experiential formats.

#5684 Group Treatment Approaches in Working With Trauma

Working together in a group atmosphere provides people who have survived a traumatic event with an opportunity to substantially cope with their reactions to this event. This workshop will help participants to learn a variety of different group interventions, when to apply them, and when not to apply them. The differences between therapy-oriented populations and non-therapy-oriented populations and their responses to trauma groups will be discussed. Establishing a safe environment for the exploration of feelings and the containment of overwhelming feelings, as well as learning the curative factors in group therapy, will be covered.

#5871 A Review of Evidence-Based Practices and Optimal Treatment Models for Complex Trauma

This workshop will present an overview of single-event and complex trauma, including a discussion of different types of traumatic events. The participants will learn about the post-traumatic stress disorder diagnosis and the limitations of this diagnosis for treatment. The impact of trauma on the brain, attachment, and disrupted attachment appear to give us more information about creative and innovative strategies to treat trauma than diagnosis. A brief review of the meaning of evidence-based practice and its use in the behavioral health field will be examined. A more in-depth look into treatment models such as trauma-focused cognitive behavioral therapy, eye movement desensitization and reprocessing, thought field therapy, dialectical behavioral therapy, and attachment self-regulation competency will be discussed.

#5855 The Ethics of Trauma and Disaster Response: Doing Right, Doing Good

This workshop will examine the ethical issues that confront mental health professionals today in the burgeoning and related fields of disaster response, humanitarian relief, and trauma interventions. Principles of ethical professional practice will be reviewed in the context of these specialized fields, with a discussion of how these principles can be applied to such interventions, as well as areas in which these principles may conflict with the demands of various field scenarios. Common pitfalls professionals face in these situations will be addressed. Philosophical issues such as morality (“doing right”) and virtue (“doing good”) will be addressed in the practical application of ethical principles to clinical interventions. A model for ethical decision-making that incorporates both morality and virtue will be presented and discussed. This workshop does not qualify for NBCC clock hours in ethics.

Family Treatment Approaches in Working With Trauma

When trauma impacts a family member, the entire system is affected. This workshop will explore the intersection of the context and the impact of trauma on members of a family and the varied responses of families and clinical strategies to help both the individual and family cope with the aftermath. Focus will also be on assessment of family functioning, trauma impact and intervention with both vulnerable and functional families, mental health concerns, including PTSD, and the issues of primary and secondary impact. The utilization of the different family systems theories approaches to treatment will be explored.

Cultural Competency in Trauma Treatment

The workshop will begin with a definition of trauma and the large array of situations that may produce traumatic experiences. It will then proceed with an introduction of the research available, stipulating the importance and ethical significance of considering different aspects of culture in diagnosis, assessment, and treatment of trauma. Cultural competency at an organizational level will be examined using handouts for participants to review and discuss in small groups. Different presentations among various cultural and ethnic groups will be described, as well as unique situations, such as in cases of immigration trauma, political torture, and exposure to war. The latter part of the presentation will focus on case vignettes intended to spark discussion among participants in regard to how knowledge, self-awareness, and cultural sensitivity/respect can be infused into our diagnosis, assessment, and treatment of trauma.

Vicarious Traumatization: Sometimes the Cost of Caring

As professionals working with trauma, we sit with and vicariously live through — watching, listening, and feeling another’s plight. The empathetic engagement with those who have experienced trauma, be it abuse, neglect, domestic violence, death, war, or any traumatic event such as 911, can produce enormous strain on the clinician’s psychological, physical, and spiritual well-being. Our greatest gift of trying to help those impacted by trauma also becomes our greatest liability. “Vicarious traumatization” (McCann and Pearlman, 1990), also known as “compassion fatigue” (Figley, 1995), is a term used to describe the cumulative impact on the lives of helping professionals who work with clients who have experienced or are experiencing trauma. The training day will be divided into two parts. The first part of the workshop will be didactic, exploring the concept of vicarious traumatization, exploring the different ways vicarious traumatization can impact professionals, and reviewing various strategies to try to minimize the impact. The second part of the workshop is experiential. With structured exercises, participants will be given the opportunity to share the impact of their work with trauma. The workshop will emphasize self-care strategies.

Differences and Diversity in the Experience, Effects, and Treatment of Trauma

New Jersey is the fifth most culturally diverse state in our nation. Traumatic stress reactions are greatly influenced by an individual’s culture, ethnicity, and spirituality. In addition, pre-existing and comorbid conditions such as mental illness and substance abuse will affect outcomes. In this workshop, we will examine how cultural issues influence the experience, effects, and treatment of trauma and discuss culturally specific needs and interventions for trauma survivors. The needs of some special populations will be explored as well.

 Violence Against Women

There are two violence against women certificates — foundation and clinical.

◆ Foundation Certificate in Violence Against Women

◆ Clinical Work With Survivors Certificate

Professionals may choose to take any individual workshop listed below that interests them. If you wish to earn either certificate, simply take all the required workshops. Workshops in the VAW certificate program that are eligible for N.J. Domestic Violence Specialist (DVS) credits are noted. For information on DVS credits, please contact the New Jersey Coalition to End Domestic Violence (NJCEDV) at http://www.njcedv.org/.

Foundation Certificate in Violence Against Women

Note: All workshops in the foundation certificate can be taken individually or as part of a certificate program. See page 8 for details.

Mental Health and Violence Against Women

Research has shown that survivors of violence against women have a greater risk of experiencing a myriad of mental health issues and are more likely to experience depression, post-traumatic stress disorder, to abuse alcohol and drugs, and to contemplate suicide as a result of their experiences, causing many survivors to seek mental health and other supportive services. This fundamental workshop provides an overview of the common mental health issues that many survivors of violence may face. Additionally, information on how to prevent “screening out” survivors from support, shelter, or clinical services based on previous misdiagnosis will be discussed, as well as an introduction to some of the current effective treatment interventions that survivors may encounter while engaged in clinical services.

Violence Against Women: Techniques in Screening, Assessment, and Basic Interventions

Appropriate responses to victims and survivors require a coordinated community response in which professionals and community members understand the types of violence perpetrated against women and children, are able to screen and assess individuals for abuse, and are prepared to provide basic and immediate interventions connecting individuals to appropriate community resources. Participants taking this workshop will also develop their understanding of the ethics, goals, and principles surrounding screening and assessing for abuse in a culturally sensitive way. It is strongly recommended that participants interested in obtaining a foundation certificate take this workshop prior to taking the other foundation workshops.

1. How do I register for a workshop?
You can register online at socialwork.rutgers.edu/ce (preferred) or complete the registration form in the back of this catalog and send it by fax or mail. Registrations are taken on the day of the workshop at 390 George St. only. Call first for availability. We do accept registrations over the phone, but please note only Visa or MasterCard will be accepted.

2. How do I register if my employer is paying?
You can mail a registration form with a purchase order or check. You can also select the “purchase order” option when registering online and send the purchase order by mail or fax. Please make sure the participant’s name is indicated on the purchase order and/or check. If your employer would like to register an employee using a Visa or MasterCard, we can take your information over the phone. Please remember, registration needs to be submitted under the name of the person attending the workshop.

3. Do I receive a confirmation email?
Confirmation emails with a link to directions are usually sent right after mailed registrations are processed and a week before the workshop date for registrations made online.

4. Where do I find directions to my workshop? Directions are available on our website (socialwork.rutgers.edu/ce) under “Location and Maps.” We recommend you print out the directions since they are usually more precise than a GPS.

5. How late can I register for a workshop? You can register at any time as long as the workshop is available. However, if you register less than a week before the workshop date, your name may not be printed on the roster. In that case, print your name and sign the roster. Once the roster is received in our office and the system is updated, you will receive your certificate via email.

6. How can I tell if a workshop is open for registrations? Check our website at socialwork.rutgers.edu/ce and search the workshop by title or number.

7. How do I know if a workshop is canceled due to bad weather or low enrollment? Check your email. We contact participants first via email if we must cancel a workshop due to low enrollment, emergencies, or inclement weather. If we don’t get a response, we will follow up with a phone call. You can choose to receive a coupon or a full refund for cancelled workshops.

8. What happens if I need to cancel a workshop? You must notify us before the workshop date. You can request a coupon valid for one year that can be applied towards another workshop OR a refund less a $25 cancelation fee. Coupons cannot be exchanged for a refund. If you do not show up on the workshop day without informing us, no restitutions will be made. When a workshop is cancelled due to weather or insufficient enrollment, no penalties apply.

9. What happens if I am late or need to leave earlier when attending a workshop? It’s acceptable if you are 15 to 20 minutes late for a workshop, but the instructor is directed not to allow participants who arrive later than that. If you need to leave a little earlier, please let the instructor know in the morning so arrangements can be made. Please note we do not issue certificates with partial CEUs.

10. How do I receive a refund? Credit card purchases will be refunded to the same card originally used within a couple of days of your request (less any cancella- tion fees due). If you paid by check, you will receive a refund check in the mail (please note this process involves different departments at Rutgers and the processing time is around 3-4 weeks).

11. What is the difference between CEUs and CE Hours, and where are they applicable? There is great variability in how these terms are used state by state and across professions. In our CE program, these terms are used interchangeably and refer to the actual clock hours or “seat time” of the workshops we offer. Please see the “Special Notices” section on page 2 of this catalog or the “CEU Provider Details” section of our website for specific entities approving our CEUs.

12. Do the CE hours count for the N.Y. state license? Yes, unless otherwise noted. We are an approved provider for social work CEUs in NY.

13. Do you have online workshops? Yes! See our online trainings at https://RutgersCE.WCEA.education

14. How do I apply to a certificate program? There is no application to our certificate programs and no deadline for completing them. Certificate programs are self-paced; once you complete the required and elective workshops, you earn your certificate (listed on page 7). Once you have attended all of the workshops, please notify our office and we will send you the final certificate. You can track your certificate progress on our website with the “Certificate Advisor” link. Please note that required certificate workshops are typically offered over the span of a calendar year.

15. How do I receive a replacement certificate? If you would like a printed certificate in the mail, there is a $10 processing fee. If you would like the office to email you the certificate, the fee will be waived.
