

POST DOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP

The Center on Violence Against Women and Children (VAWC) at the Rutgers School of Social Work provides a supportive educational environment for students at all levels, including recent doctoral graduates. Cited as a “leading research institute” by the White House, VAWC offers numerous violence against women and children-related research projects from federally funded national projects to community-based program evaluations. Post doctoral associates will work directly with Dr. Victoria Banyard and Dr. Sarah McMahon on a number of projects. The positions will begin September 1, 2019 for a one year appointment, with possible renewal for a second year.

Activities for the Post doc Associate:

- Work with faculty on research projects including data analyses, interpretation, and dissemination through peer reviewed publications, conferences, and translational materials.
- Learn and work with faculty, staff, and students from different disciplines.

REQUIREMENTS

- PhD in Social Work/related field; expected completion by May 2019.
- Will consider pre-doc candidates if finished by Sept. 2019
- Experience with research on violence against women and children preferred
- Quantitative or mixed methods data analyses skills needed; will preference candidates with advanced statistical knowledge (e.g. SEM, longitudinal data)

Submit letter of interest, CV, writing sample, and contact information for 3 references to vawc@ssw.rutgers.edu, and use the subject heading, “Postdoctoral Associate Application”.